MY LAST WISHES

It's important for your farewell to feel right to you, and meaningful to those you love. This chapter is here to help you express your wishes for when the time comes. That may mean a simple gathering, a celebration, or something deeply personal.

A farewell is a moment for those you love to come together, share memories, and honour your life in a way that feels right. By recording your preferences here, you're making things easier for them, giving them clarity and comfort during a difficult time.

Whether it's music, flowers from your garden, or a gathering filled with laughter, your farewell can be as unique as the life you've lived.
